

Dear Expectant Mom,

We've read a hundred letters from adoptive parents to expectant moms and one thing is for sure....this is hard.

If there's one thing we get right, it's that we love big. We love being married and we truly love being parents. The most fun we've had the last few years is doing life as a family and finding Joy in everything around us. I guess that's what we want you, an expectant mom to know the most, because you too are a love filled, strong person to choose adoption for yourself, your child and our family!

Nathan and Megan met in 2013 and married 7 months later. It wasn't easy to get pregnant, and we prayed so hard that God would make us a family. 2 years later we were blessed with a daughter. Both Nathan and Megan grew up playing sports, Nathan, football and basketball, and Megan, softball, volleyball and rodeo. Being in sports taught us to work hard for what you want and it will happen. We've both taught and worked in schools for 10+ years and we are so excited to finally have the right person to raise children with.

As much as we love traveling to visit friends, family and new places, there's something special about home. We love having friends and family over for dinners/barbeques. Both sides of our families have been blessed by adoption and we love that our loved ones are an amazing blend of married, biological, adopted, best friends and at the end of the day we're all family. There's so much more to share, we look forward to getting to know you. We are thankful that your faith and trust will guide you in planning for yourself and child.
