

Hello,

Our names are Nirma and Tony and we are honored that you have chosen to read our profile. We understand you are in the middle of making some difficult decisions. This must be hard for you, and maybe even a bit, or a lot, overwhelming. It is impossible for us to imagine what this is all like for you. It is our hope that, by telling you a little about ourselves, we can somehow bring you some peace about the decisions you are making.

Nirma was born in Puerto Rico and moved to Michigan at four years of age. Tony grew up in a small town in Illinois. We met in college and have been married for 20 years. Nirma is a nurse working as a Clinical Coordinator and Tony is a chaplain working in Hospice. Some of the things we enjoy doing together are eating hiking, skiing, relaxing in our hammock, eating, hanging out with friends, watching movies together and did I mention eating?

Our immediate families consist of parents and one sibling each. We both were raised spending time with our immediate and extended families and knew that having a family of our own was something we both wanted. Over time due to some health issues, it became clear that we were infertile. Choosing adoption was an easy choice because we knew there were plenty of children out in the world who need a home and we both felt creating a family did not have to come from blood. Unfortunately, our families live out of state but we have been able to create a local “family” with the friends we have in the Colorado area. We have spent holidays, late nights playing games, camping trips, worshiping together in church and eating together with our “family”.

A few more things you should know about us. We wish to do what is best for our child. Our hope is to have an open adoption and we intend on making sure one of us is home to care for our child at all times. We both want to make sure that we provide a safe, loving environment that will allow our child to develop into who they are.

We hope this tells you a little about us, who we are and what we believe. If we are the family that you choose to raise this child, know we have been praying for you and for this child. Also know that we promise to love him/her unconditionally.

May Gods peace and love be with you always,

Tony and Nirma
